Ask the sky before you act.

Pythia

Hello, I'm Pythia. Try asking: "Is Mercury retrograde?", "How compatible are a Leo and a Pisces as roommates?", or "I'm a Capricorn, should I ask for a raise this week?"

What's going on in the sky right now? Anything retrograde?

Retrograde Rundown

We have a few heavy hitters turned backward right now:

- Venus in Scorpio is retrograde, turning our attention inward toward deep emotional truths, relationship reflections, and past connections.
- Saturn, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto are also retrograde, creating a collective season of review, restructuring, and sorting out old business before we leap forward.

I'm a Gemini. Should I ask for a raise this week?

The verdict is wait!

Here is the breakdown for you as a Gemini:

- Risk Score: 2 (due to current retrogrades affecting negotiations)
- Venus Retrograde: Complicates conversations around money and personal value.
- Saturn Retrograde: Can bring extra friction when dealing with authority figures or bosses, plus delays in recognition.

Since your ruling planet Mercury is direct, your communication is clear and sharp—which is a great asset! However, with Venus and Saturn both retrograde, asking for financial backing or formal recognition right now might hit unnecessary speed bumps.

If you can, use this week to quietly build your case, gather your accomplishments, and line up your data. When the cosmic dust settles, you'll be in a much stronger position to make your move!

What about signing a lease?

The verdict for signing a lease right now is proceed with caution (Risk Score: 1).

Here is what's behind that:

The verdict for signing a lease right now is proceed with caution (Risk Score: 1).

Here is what's behind that:

- Saturn Retrograde: Saturn is asking you to take a very close, careful look at long-term commitments and binding obligations.
- The Bright Side: Your ruling planet, Mercury, is direct! That means your mind is clear, and you can read the fine print without getting tangled up in misunderstandings.

If you have to sign a lease right now, just make sure to comb through every single clause, check the fine print for hidden fees or quirky rules, and trust your gut. But if you have the luxury of time, take a few extra days to review everything twice before putting pen to paper!

Okay so I'm a gemini and my crush is a taurus, are we compatible? Should I ask them out? When should I ask them?

Here is the cosmic scoop on you (Gemini) and your Taurus crush:

1. Compatibility Score: 49/50 (Romantic Context)

- The Elements (Air + Earth): You're an Air sign (sparkly, fast-moving, ideas-first) and they are an Earth sign (grounded, steady, sensory). You operate at different speeds—you love to float and flutter; they love to plant roots.
- The Modalities (Mutable + Fixed): You're adaptable and love change, while Taurus is a fixed sign that prefers stability and routine.

It's an unconventional pairing, meaning you have to appreciate each other's differences. You bring the fun and spontaneity, and they bring the cozy stability!

2. Should you ask them out?

With a 49% baseline compatibility, romance takes a little more intentional effort, but opposites can definitely attract if there's good chemistry elsewhere in your charts! If you like them, it's always worth a shot—just keep your expectations flexible.

3. When should you ask them?

The timing advisor verdict for sending that kind of message right now is proceed with caution (Risk Score: 1).

- Why? Venus (the planet of romance and relating) is currently retrograde. Venus retrograde has a habit of making romantic texts, confessions, and first dates a little emotionally charged or prone to misreadings.

If you want to play it safest, use the next few days to flirt, test the waters, and chat casually while your direct Mercury keeps your communication sharp. Then, when Venus moves forward again, you'll be primed for a bolder move!
